Keiser University Partners With Hands On Miami Books and movies will be collected to help local charities

Kendall, Florida—Keiser University is involved with two collection drives in the Kendall community. One of their opportunities is partnering with Hands On Miami to collect books for Centro Campesino's new library in Homestead. In addition, the Kendall campus has collected movies to be provided to oncology patients for them to watch during their treatments.

"Giving back to the community is a cornerstone to Keiser University's mission and students, faculty and administrators are all eager to get involved," stated Carmen Perez-Padron, Student Services Director. She is proud to announce that with generous donations from throughout the Keiser University system over 500 books will be donated to the new library.

The second donation drive for movies netted over 60 DVDs, which were collected and delivered to Making Movies Matter, who will distribute all of their donations to various hospitals throughout Broward, Miami-Dade and Monroe counties.

Hands on Miami is a volunteer organization that puts together community service projects throughout the Miami-Dade county area. On Saturday, June 7 they will be organizing volunteers to help at the library with painting, organizing and putting the donated books on the shelves.
